

cica

career industry council of australia

Our History

1999

Need for a Peak Body was identified by career practitioners and academics in response to 1992 MCEEYTA statements about career education

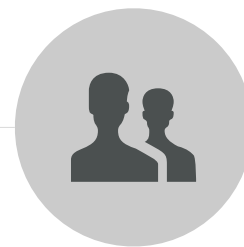

2000

First formal meeting held at UTS where vision and mission was agreed upon. Originally known as the Career Consortium of Australia

2000

First informal meeting held in Perth at the IAEVG International Conference

2003

Incorporated in Victoria as the Career Industry Council of Australia

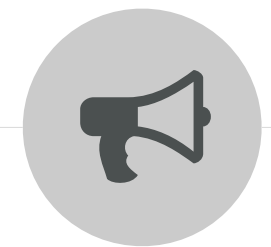

2004

Government Contract awarded to develop Professional Standards
- Scoping paper written
- Shaping a career development culture

2004

National Forum for Career Practitioners held in Sydney where agreement was reached on the need to develop Professional Standards

Our History

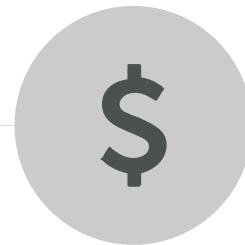

2004/5

National Consultation Process was conducted on National Standards managed by Miles Morgan. Standards were written based on Association input and feedback

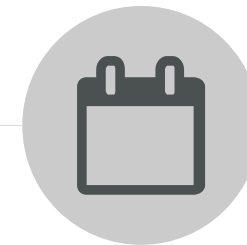

2006

Commissioned a report on the Economic Benefits of Career Development by Access Economics

2008

Government contract awarded to run National Career Development Week until 2010

2006

Implementation of Professional Standards Commences

2007

The public benefits of career development services - a position paper released

2012

Key Reports released on Engaging Parents in the Career Development Process, Career Development Guidelines for People with a Disability & VET Career Development Services

Our History

2014

School Career Development
Benchmarking Resource

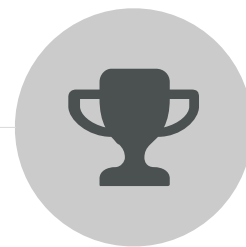

2015

CICA Council votes in favour of creating CICA
Registration

2015

Research into Career Development
Practitioners
partnering with McCrimble - A snapshot of career development
practitioners in schools

2017

Research partnering with McCrimble -What's happening in our schools? Insights into School Based Career
Practitioners

2018

CICA Council agrees to revision of Professional Standards

CICA awarded Government contract -
VET. It's Right Now.

NOW

Revised Professional Standards released

National Careers Week
13-19 May

#Work2030 campaign

